MR. HARDING'S TRIAL BALLOON

[From the New York World]

Senator Borah may be right or wrong when he describes President Harding's proposed Association of Nations as "the old League of Nations with possibly some reservations;" but he is wholly right when he says:

If we want to go into this kind of proposition, there is no reason why we should not experiment with the one they have. It is claimed by the advocates of the league that the present league has been of service to Europe. If so, there is no reason for asking Europe to scrap the old league and try a new one. If we are going into Europe, we ought to go in. If we are not, we ought not to be handing her a new league every ninety days. She will likely conclude that after the next presidential election she would have another league.

The senator from Idaho has stated the case clearly and adequately. If the United States is to maintain a policy of isolation, there is no need of an Association of Nations. If the policy of isolation is to be abandoned, the League of Nations is an established institution and we ought not to expect the rest of the world to leave its international relations at the mercy of every presidential election in the United States.

Of even greater importance is the Harding proposal that the Association of Nations is to have no written constitution, give no guarantees and refuse to assume treaty obligations. It is to be merely a "gentleman's agreement," with all that that implies. In the case of the United States it means that the constitution of the United States is to be scrapped in respect to foreign affairs. We are to adopt in a modified form the system of czarist Russia and monarchist Germany, in which foreign relations were the exclusive prerogative of the executive authority. This is an extraordinary suggestion to come from men like Mr. Harding and Mr. Lodge, who opposed the covenant of the League of Nations on the pretext that it invaded the powers of congress; yet the covenant was in the form of a treaty, and treaties must always be interpreted in accordance with the constitution.

Mr. Harding, after posing as a strict conformist of the constitution, is now seeking to eliminate the constitution and make the White House the sole arbiter of the foreign affairs of the United States. It appears from the Washington dispatches that it was the White House which inspired the report that no treaties would be framed in connection with the conference for the limitation of armament. From the president's point of view, treaties are superfluous. The naval reduction program can be carried out by the executive without the consent of congress, inasmuch as he has authority to retire useless ships. Whatever is decided on in respect to the Pacific and the Far East is to remain a gentleman's agreement among the nations immediately concerned. Nobody is to assume legal obligations, and each government will be the judge of its moral obligations. Now comes the proposal for an Association of Nations in which the gentleman's agreement is to be the guiding principle.

The World can think of no worse way of carrying on the foreign affairs of nations. Secret treaties were bad, but at least they were treaties, and they both defined and limited the obligations of the signatory powers. A gentleman's agreement, with shifting popular passions, would be the most effective agency of international distrust and international discord that could be contrived.

Mr. Harding has advanced no public reason why any of these things should be done by the gentleman's agreement method. So we still think that these White House reports are merely balloons, and that the president has no serious intention of putting his gentleman's agreement into effect either in respect to the work of the conference or in respect to the shadowy Association of Nations. Nor is it conceivable that congress itself would tamely submit to the most sweeping act of executive usurpation in American history.

SOME BENEFIT, PERHAPS

If the activities of the bootleggers keep up and jail sentences are meted out to offenders it is only a matter of time when Uncle Sam will have to put up some building here, or Reno, or elsewhere to accommodate the guilty ones.

As it is now the limit of every jail hereabouts has been reached. And the manufacture of "jack" goes merrily on.

WHERE THERE IS A DIFFERENCE

William Randolph Hearst, through his string of yellow journals, hops on to anything that savors of a world league for peace and holds to his idea, as his papers term it, for a "magnificent isolation" for the United States, but not to the extent that he does not want this country to enter Mexico and protect the millions of acres he owns in that republic.

That's different.

MUST BE A KICK BEHIND IT

President Harding's Association of Nations plan would be backed by a "gentleman's agreement."

Something of that kind was entered into with Japan a few years ago regarding immigration, but there has been little decrease in the number of Japs arriving at points along the Pacific coast.

A "gentleman's agreement" may be all right among poker players, but when it comes to international affairs there must be something behind the whole thing that has a "kick" to it.

MORE CAMPAIGN PREPARATIONS

Another reason why we intend to take the stump for the grand old Republican ticket next year and in 1924, tax reduction or no tax reduction, is that virtually all the old professional Republican hangers-on have now been placed in offices of great trust and responsibility, many of them at distant points, and we simply could not bear the prospect of having them around again all the time, the way they were during the eight depressing years of the Wilson administration.—Ohio State Journal.

A Friend of the Family

Over fifty years ago a young physician practiced widely in Pennsylvania and became famous for his uniform success in the curing of disease. This was Dr. R. V. Pierce who afterwards established himself in Buffalo, N. Y., and placed one of his prescriptions, which he called his "Golden Medical Discovery," in the drug stores of the United States so that the public could easily obtain this very remarkable tonic, corrective, and blood-maker. Dr. Pierce manufactured this "Discovery" from roots and barks without alcohol—a corrective remedy, the ingredients of which nature had put in the fields and forests, for keeping us healthy. Introduce pure red blood into the system, and health is assured. When you feel run-down, out of sorts, blue and despondent try the energizing influence of this reliable tonic. You can obtain Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for a trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.
